

don't need galvanizing are the two sections of battery. Schaik is working like a dynamo, but he can't generate enough power for the whole machine. Good pitching is wasted when backed by a team which can't hit, and can't score runs on the few hits it does register.

Fielder Jones won a pennant with a team which couldn't hit the water if it fell out of a boat. But the men were gingery, bright ball players, who were on their toes all the time, taking advantage of every slip of the enemy, and getting many runs on baserunning ability.

The present Sox, taken as a whole, are a bunch of President Tafts when it comes to running. Chase can perform on the bases, and so can Lord, but that about winds up the list. Collins has been long hailed as a base Matty may be going back, but he sure has some long way to go. Yesterday's game was his regular speed for the season. He looks as good as he ever did in his long baseball career, and will be a big factor in the coming world's series.
